Master in Computational Linguistics and PhD in Theoretical Linguistics (University of Maryland, 2002). Her research area is mainly within the field of theoretical linguistics and she is part of the UPV/EHU research group HiTT Basque Research Group in Theoretical Linguistics. Her work focuses mainly on nominal structures, especially in Basque, from a wide perspective that includes theoretical as well as applied approaches in the context of the lexical-discursive development of Basque in scientific texts. She teaches undergraduate courses on specialized uses of Basque in health sciences as well as a graduate course in Language Analysis and Processing (HAP).
